

Named Program Overview

The Named Program offers the unique opportunity to create a legacy by having your name associated with important projects carried out by the IGCS. A Named Program may include funding a named fellowship for one or more of our surgical, pathology or radiation oncology programs. Named scholarships, lectureships and other significant initiatives are also options.

Program Objectives

Empowerment Through Mentoring, Training, Education or Research: The program aims to provide financial support to deserving individuals, enabling them to pursue their academic and professional goals.

- Legacy Building: Donors can leave a legacy by associating their name, or the name of a loved one, with a prestigious fellowship, scholarship, or other initiative.
- Sustainable Impact: Depending on the amount of the contribution, it will be invested in perpetuity, ensuring that the donor's impact continues for generations.

How the Program Works

- Donors can choose to fund a named fellowship with mentoring and training for our surgical programs, pathology or radiation. Other ideas include named scholarships, lectureships and other significant initiatives. Each opportunity can be tailored to reflect the donor's interests, values, and vision.
- Donors have the option to name the opportunity after themselves, a loved one, or an organization. This name will be associated with the fellowship, program, scholarship, or grant in all related communications and materials.
- Recipients of named opportunities benefit from financial support, recognition, and mentorship, helping them to achieve their full potential.
- Donors are recognized in various ways, including public acknowledgment at events, inclusion in annual reports, and through personalized updates about the impact of their gift. Donors are invited to participate directly in the programs.
- IGCS will provide regular updates to donors on the progress and achievements of the recipients. Donors are also invited to special events where they can meet the recipients and see firsthand the impact of their generosity.
- A named program has a one-year term.
